

Rudolf Steiner College

Opening the Space for Creativity

Moving Waldorf into the Next 100 Years

February 16-18, 2019

Registration Fee: $295, includes lunch on Saturday & Sunday, and a Social Hour early Saturday Evening.

With Maureen Curran Turtletaub, Timothy Tillman, Erin Schirm,
Tristan Rumery, Justin Ganz & Edmund Knighton

Registration open soon, more details at steinercollege.edu/feb-conf-19/.

The conference community will come together throughout the weekend, and workshops will be created as a collaborative effort between participants and presenters.

At this working conference, you will collaborate with teachers who have created original movement processes, paradigms and programs. Participants will go beyond learning new activities for their classroom to gaining the capacity to build their own process for creating and integrating movement activities to meet their students' needs.

Movement is a crucial element of an effective learning environment and healthy classroom culture.

Movement benefits students of all ages and levels when integrated Into main lessons, transitions, art and drawing and other classes.

"There is a gesture to invite the unfolding of what is streaming toward us out of the future."

Maureen Curran-Turtletaub

Join us to explore and create this gesture for yourself and your students.

Find your creativity in Fair Oaks this February!